The older we get the more complicated our injuries become. When an older adult falls, their hospital stay is almost twice as long as those elderly patients who are admitted for any other reason. The most profound effect of falling is the loss of function associated with independent living. Sunset (through Brookcrest & Waterford) provides physical, occupational, speech and recreational therapy to help heal the hurting senior and restore their body to perform tasks at their best.

I have been an Occupational Therapist for 21 years; 20 of those have been spent at Brookcrest! Now as the Director of Therapy for all Sunset campuses, my role has changed but I continue to see clients who come into therapy, which gives me great joy. I believe in serving with the dignity and respect that everyone deserves. Many therapy companies are in it for the money and are not looking out for the best interest of the clients. At Brookcrest and Waterford Rehab, this is not the case! There is a genuine care and concern for those we serve. You are family! I try to treat each resident as if they were my own family member. There are many options to receive these therapies, however, Brookcrest and Waterford Rehab are a step above others!

- We provide one on one, patient-centered therapy.
- We collaborate with the patients to set their goals.
- We empower them to meet their goals.
- We give them the tools to live a safe and healthy life.

It matters to us that they are happy with their therapy achievements, as we strive to provide great customer service, in case they should ever need us again!

Sunset’s reputation is great! People in the community typically give a smile when I mention, “I work at Brookcrest or Waterford Place” (or really any Sunset campus!).

There is so much personal reward in providing therapy. One of the first clients I worked with at Brookcrest had come into rehab after a massive stroke. She was living alone and completely independent prior to this stroke. She went through three months of rehab to learn how to walk, talk, dress herself, feed herself, and be as independent as she could. Unfortunately, she still had deficits that would not allow her to return to be independence at home. Her left hand limited her ability to crochet and this was her favorite hobby. She had become depressed about her situation and loss of the ability to do something she enjoyed. Recreational Therapy and I worked together to adapt her crochet needles so she could hold them better. I provided her with exercises and stretches for her hand so she could work on them daily. We incorporated other types of activities that she enjoyed so she had a sense of purpose to her day.

*Waterford Rehab #1 and Brookcrest #3 based on 2nd quarter quality results for admissions, length of stay, outcomes, and re-hospitalization.

Getting out of bed, getting dressed, standing in the shower, cooking a meal, or writing out a check are things we take for granted until we can’t do them anymore!

Over the course of six months, this client continued to work on her exercises independently and Recreational Therapy continued to help her gain independence with other leisure tasks. One day, she came down to my office and left a crocheted pot holder. Taken aback, I asked if she made this. She began crying and smiling saying, “I kept it a secret from you—SURPRISE! It took hours but I did it…with all your help!” She continued to get faster with making them and soon made so many that she sold them in craft shows. This determination spilled over into her basic life skills so that she became more independent with walking, toileting and dressing. She was able to stop taking antidepressant medications. She even left Brookcrest to live with her daughter since she had become more independent. A very happy day for her and such a success story for all of us at Brookcrest. I can still recall her smile and laugh to this day!

One of the wonderful things about Sunset is that we are a non-profit. As a therapist with high ethical standards, this means that you always “do the right thing for the client”. In for-profit companies, management decides which client gets seen by therapy and for how long, to maximize insurance reimbursement. The longer you stay in a facility for rehab, the more the facility gets paid by insurance. Brookcrest and Waterford Rehab have one of the lowest length-of-stays in the area: an average of about two weeks! Other rehabs are averaging 3-4 weeks. Also, our outcomes relating to meeting goals is higher than other places. In a nutshell, staying for a shorter period and still meeting all your goals equals a successful rehab experience!

Our therapy team is empathetic, energetic and has a heart for the older adult population.
Lately, I have been noticing how much hand holding goes on in life. Parents hold their young child’s hand to keep him from touching the waterfall outside of my office. Adult children holding the hands of their mother as she passes from this earthly life into eternity. Even walking to church with my wife involves holding hands.

The Bible has a lot to say about hands but I often wonder why there is a differentiation between the right hand and the left hand. When we read about God’s strength, it is described as His mighty right hand. Ps.118:15 “The Lord’s right hand has done mighty things!” This week I prayed that God would let me hold His hand but I wanted him to take my left hand so that I could still respond with my own “strong right hand”.

Instead, God did something that I didn’t immediately understand. He brought to mind Psalm 73:21-24 “When my heart was grieved and my spirit embittered, I was senseless and ignorant; I was a brute beast before you. Yet I am always with you; you hold me by my right hand. You guide me with your counsel, and afterward you will take me into glory.”

I believe that my heavenly Father grabbed ahold of my right hand with his left hand. This prevented me from trying to help myself by using my own right hand, which would likely have created more trouble for me. But it also left God’s mighty right hand free to reign as he knows best. “For I am the LORD, your God, who takes hold of your right hand and says to you, ‘Do not fear; I will help you.’” Is. 41:13. Never hesitate to let God hold your hand, and if you get an opportunity to hold someone else’s hand, grab it.
During the hottest days of July, you might have noticed a few of them picking up trash along I-196. Participating in MDOT’s Adopt-A-Highway program, Sunset has “adopted” the stretch of highway from 32nd Avenue to M-6. Three times a year a group of employees will pick up trash in that two-mile stretch in an effort to help keep our Michigan roadways looking beautiful. We’re thankful for this dedicated group of volunteers who braved the heat and traffic to share Sunset’s spirit of Christian service with our community!

I consider myself blessed to be surrounded by so much life, knowledge and love! Often I am asked, “Do you like working at a nursing home?” or “Isn’t it depressing to work at a nursing home?” My reply is always the same: I love working in the home of my dear friends and no, it is not depressing, it is life-giving! There is such an abundance of fun, joy, happiness, and fulfilling relationships that happen at Brookcrest, it is truly hard to keep up.

Yes, most the people that live with us are older and may have some kind of physical or mental impairment, but with age come great stories, wisdom, and life experiences that can be shared with multiple generations. This is in itself truly a blessing to all those who are witnesses and it would never happen, except in a setting such as Brookcrest. Brookcrest is a unique community and all those who have worked, visited or lived here would agree. We have a culture that promotes community and the sharing of life. When one of the Brookcrest team members has a baby, they don’t simply go on maternity leave and come back eight or so weeks later and go about their job. While on maternity leave, the Brookcrest team member always comes in and brings their newborn babies to see all of their friends and share this great life experience with those they share life with daily. We celebrate one another’s birthdays, anniversaries, and other milestones together, as families do. We mourn the loss of each resident who passes away, and celebrate the good times that we had and rejoice together that the one we have lost is now with the Lord.

The Bible states in Psalm 118:24 “This is the day that the Lord has made, we will rejoice and be glad in it.” This verse holds even more weight in the later years of life than it does in our younger years. I have been witness to so many great people who, despite their age, physical, or mental disability, love each and every day of life as it were their last! It is truly an inspiration. I get the pleasure of talking to and spending time with people who are wheelchair bound, blind or have had strokes, yet who tell me how blessed they are by the Lord and how happy they are to spend time with and fellowship with our team and other residents. Every morning when I come in I am greeted by a smiling group of people on their way to breakfast who are happy to be alive and are truly celebrating life one day at a time. We greet each other and crack jokes and just plain live life together. I would not trade experiences like this for anything, they are truly irreplaceable.

Most everyone who resides with us will tell you, life is not about what you have, but it is about who you have and the experiences... that you can share with them. Material things get old, lose value and tarnish but relationships and friendships build stronger and more secure over time. When we come to work in a place such as Brookcrest, it starts out as a job, but for many of us it becomes a calling. I find most days I get back as much or more than I am able to give due to the kind hearts and kind words of all of our great residents and team members. I truly enjoy celebrating life one day at a time with such a fantastic and unique group of individuals.

Continuum of Care Seminars

We know that senior living can be overwhelming. So many options: independent living, home care, assisted living, short-term rehabilitation and long-term care. As an organization, we want to help you navigate these choices by offering Continuum of Care Seminars later this fall. These seminars are geared towards those individuals and families exploring senior living resources and those already a part of the Sunset family. We have assembled a panel of experts including admissions counselors, social workers, physical therapists and nurses, to name a few. Our goal at each event is to answer key questions about the various levels of care, such as: ‘What is this? What does it cost? How do I get there?’ Look for an invitation in your mailbox this September!
